Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-min warm-up on the heart rate (HR) and oxygen consumption ($\dot{V}O_2$) of young men during a 10-min period of maximal work. The subjects were divided into two groups: one group performed a 10-min warm-up before the maximal work period, and the other group did not. The warm-up group showed a significantly lower HR and $\dot{V}O_2$ during the maximal work period compared to the control group. The results suggest that a 10-min warm-up can reduce the HR and $\dot{V}O_2$ of young men during a 10-min period of maximal work.

Is Your New Laptop Too Hot to Handle? The new 15-inch MacBook Pro is a powerful machine, but it's also a hot one. The laptop's internal components can get so hot that they can cause the laptop to shut down. Apple has released a firmware update to help cool the laptop down, but it's not a perfect solution. The laptop can still get hot, and the update can cause other problems. If you're having trouble with your MacBook Pro, there are a few things you can try. First, make sure the laptop is on a hard surface. Second, make sure the laptop is not in a bag or case. Third, make sure the laptop is not in a room that is too hot. If you're still having trouble, you may need to contact Apple support.

Meralco warns of power outages

MANILA (PNA) — Meralco has issued a warning to its customers that power outages may occur in some areas of Metro Manila and surrounding areas due to the heavy rain and strong winds.

The company said that the weather conditions may cause power lines to sag and break, leading to power outages.

Meralco urged customers to be prepared for possible power outages and to have backup power sources available.

The company also advised customers to avoid using electrical appliances during the heavy rain and strong winds.

Meralco said that it will continue to monitor the weather conditions and will provide updates on power outages as they occur.

Con-ass resolution filed; critics say it's legal ploy

Manila—A resolution filed in the House of Representatives last week, which would strip the Senate of its power to impeach and try judges, has drawn sharp criticism from legal experts and opposition lawmakers. Critics say the move is a legal ploy to weaken the judiciary and is unconstitutional.

The resolution, introduced by House Speaker Juan Ponce Enrile, states that the Senate's power to impeach and try judges is unconstitutional because it is not explicitly mentioned in the 1987 Constitution. It also states that the Senate's power to impeach and try judges is a violation of the separation of powers.

Legal experts, however, say the resolution is unconstitutional. They say that the Senate's power to impeach and try judges is a constitutional power, and that the resolution is a violation of the separation of powers. They also say that the resolution is a legal ploy to weaken the judiciary and is unconstitutional.

Opposition lawmakers also say that the resolution is a legal ploy to weaken the judiciary and is unconstitutional. They say that the resolution is a violation of the separation of powers and is unconstitutional.

P2.3B more pork for new party-list reps; 200M for office, staff

Manila—The House of Representatives has approved a resolution to allocate an additional P2.3 billion for the new party-list representatives, and P200 million for their office and staff. The resolution was passed by a vote of 187 to 10.

The resolution states that the additional P2.3 billion will be used to provide the new party-list representatives with the same level of funding as the traditional representatives. It also states that the P200 million will be used to provide the new party-list representatives with the same level of office and staff funding as the traditional representatives.

The resolution was introduced by House Speaker Juan Ponce Enrile. He said that the resolution was necessary to ensure that the new party-list representatives were given the same level of funding as the traditional representatives.

Opposition lawmakers, however, say that the resolution is a legal ploy to weaken the judiciary and is unconstitutional. They say that the resolution is a violation of the separation of powers and is unconstitutional.

Party-list system: Mechanism of proportional representation

The party-list system is a mechanism of proportional representation. It allows voters to vote for a party or a list of candidates. The party or list that receives the most votes wins a certain number of seats in the House of Representatives. This system is designed to ensure that all voters have a voice in the government, and that the government is representative of the people.

The party-list system is a key feature of the Philippine political system. It allows voters to vote for a party or a list of candidates, and the party or list that receives the most votes wins a certain number of seats in the House of Representatives. This system is designed to ensure that all voters have a voice in the government, and that the government is representative of the people.

Palparan fitness for Congress, human rights record questioned

Manila—The fitness of Senator Antonio Palparan for Congress and his human rights record have been questioned by opposition lawmakers and human rights activists. They say that Palparan's record in Congress and his involvement in human rights violations make him unfit for office.

Palparan, a member of the ruling party, has been accused of involvement in human rights violations during his time in Congress. He has also been accused of using his position to further his own interests.

Opposition lawmakers and human rights activists say that Palparan's record in Congress and his involvement in human rights violations make him unfit for office. They say that he should be removed from office.

The capital of the Philippines is Manila. It is a large city with a long history. It is the center of the country's government and economy.

Panel approves bills raising House members to 300 at the max

Manila—A panel of the House of Representatives has approved bills that would raise the number of House members to 300 at the maximum. The bills were passed by a vote of 187 to 10.

The bills state that the number of House members should be increased from the current 333 to 300. This would be a decrease, but the bills also state that the number of House members should not exceed 300.

The bills were introduced by House Speaker Juan Ponce Enrile. He said that the bills were necessary to ensure that the House of Representatives was the most effective and efficient body in the government.

Opposition lawmakers, however, say that the bills are a legal ploy to weaken the judiciary and is unconstitutional. They say that the bills are a violation of the separation of powers and is unconstitutional.

Feed mil shuts down after shipment of GMO corn seized twice

Manila, Philippines — A feed mill in Manila has been ordered to shut down after its shipment of genetically modified (GMO) corn was seized for the second time. The Department of Agriculture (DA) said the feed mill, which is a subsidiary of a large agribusiness company, had been found to be shipping GMO corn to various parts of the country. The DA said it had received reports from farmers and other sources that the feed mill was shipping GMO corn. The DA said it had conducted a series of inspections and found that the feed mill was shipping GMO corn. The DA said it had seized the shipment of GMO corn and ordered the feed mill to shut down. The DA said it was investigating the case and would take appropriate action against the feed mill.

Crisis changes consumer priorities, survey shows

Rice, groceries no longer staple items

By Robert L. Levine

WASHINGTON — The economic crisis has fundamentally altered what Americans consider essential, according to a new survey by the Pew Research Center. In the past, items such as food, shelter and clothing were considered necessities. But now, the survey found, Americans are more concerned about their financial future, their health and the well-being of their families. The survey also found that Americans are more likely to cut back on discretionary spending, such as travel and entertainment, and more likely to buy generic brands and discount stores. The survey was conducted by the Pew Research Center, a nonpartisan, non-profit organization that conducts public opinion polling, demographic research, and other surveys. The survey was conducted from April 15 to April 22, 2008, among 1,500 U.S. adults. The survey found that 63% of Americans consider their financial future to be a top priority, up from 48% in 2006. Health and the well-being of their families are also top priorities, with 58% and 56% respectively. Food, shelter and clothing are still considered necessities, but their importance has declined. For example, only 38% of Americans consider food to be a top priority, down from 52% in 2006. The survey also found that Americans are more likely to cut back on discretionary spending, such as travel and entertainment, and more likely to buy generic brands and discount stores. The survey found that 45% of Americans have cut back on discretionary spending in the past six months, up from 35% in 2006. The survey also found that 42% of Americans have switched to generic brands, up from 32% in 2006. The survey found that 38% of Americans have switched to discount stores, up from 28% in 2006.

Is the Cornelec up to something bad?

REACTIVE

WASHINGTON — The Cornelec, a small, unassuming device that looks like a combination of a camera and a computer, has been the subject of a recent investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). The device, which is sold by a company called Cornelec, has been found to be capable of recording everything that happens on a computer screen, including passwords, credit card numbers, and other sensitive information. The FBI is currently investigating whether the Cornelec is being used by hackers or other malicious actors. The device is sold for a price of $29.95, and it is marketed as a "security" device. However, the FBI has found that the device is capable of recording everything that happens on a computer screen, including passwords, credit card numbers, and other sensitive information. World gets angry for RP strike, ramping markets

WASHINGTON — The world is getting angry at the United States for its role in the recent rare earth processing plant strike in China. The strike, which was led by the Chinese government, has resulted in a significant disruption of the global rare earth supply chain. The rare earth elements are used in a wide range of products, including electronics, automotive parts, and industrial machinery. The strike has caused a shortage of these elements, which has led to a sharp increase in their prices. The world is getting angry at the United States for its role in the strike. The United States is accused of supporting the strike, which is seen as a violation of international law. The United States is also accused of using its economic power to pressure China into ending the strike. The world is calling for the United States to stop its interference in the strike and to allow the Chinese government to resolve the dispute on its own terms. The world is also calling for the United States to stop its use of economic power to pressure other countries. Don't overshoot 1st quarter deficit target

WASHINGTON — The White House is warning that the first quarter deficit target should not be overshoot. The target, which is set at $100 billion, is a key indicator of the government's fiscal health. The White House is concerned that the deficit could be overshoot if the government continues to spend at the current rate. The White House is calling for a more disciplined approach to spending and for a more aggressive approach to revenue raising. The White House is also calling for a more transparent and accountable approach to budgeting. The White House is currently in the process of reviewing the results of a recent investigation into the government's fiscal practices. The investigation, which was conducted by the White House's Office of Management and Enterprise, found that there were significant deficiencies in the government's budgeting and spending practices. The White House is currently working with the relevant departments to address these deficiencies and to ensure that the government is operating in a fiscally responsible manner. The White House is also working to improve the government's transparency and accountability. The first time I saw a chicken a la Provençal, I was in a small restaurant in the heart of the French Riviera. The chef, a man with a white apron and a friendly smile, was preparing the dish in front of me. He explained that the dish was a classic of the region, made with chicken, olives, and herbs. I was intrigued and decided to try it. The result was a delicious, aromatic dish that I had never tasted before. It was a perfect example of the French love for fresh, local ingredients.

Chicken a la Provençal

A chicken a la Provençal is a classic dish from the French Riviera. It is made with chicken, olives, and herbs. The dish is simple and delicious, and it is a perfect example of the French love for fresh, local ingredients. The chicken is cooked in a sauce made with olive oil, garlic, and herbs. The olives are added at the end of the cooking process, and they add a salty, tangy flavor to the dish. The herbs, which are usually basil and parsley, add a fresh, aromatic touch. The result is a dish that is both simple and sophisticated, and it is a perfect example of the French love for fresh, local ingredients.
